Prof. Nishith Rai
Director/Chief Editor

The first decade of the 21st Century is full of diverse experiences. The World has become urban; the developing countries are experiencing economic boom, on one hand, and the recession in economy, on the other hand. India, although developing fast, has not been severely affected by the economic recession as other developed countries have been facing. The mixed Indian economy coupled with agro-based economy has survived successfully the impact of economic slow down, a few aberrations however are found here and there. The credit mainly goes to country's strong urban economy and increasing economic activities, as the country has gone the way to invest heavily in infrastructure building simultaneously.

The launch of reform based ambitious JNNURM and its omnibus schemes has succeeded in revolutionizing the development of urban infrastructure and services in Urban India. This has created a new phase in developing human resources to meet the urban challenges and innovations. A new era has started in the field of human resource development in Urban India. Knowledge base has been accepted an important factor in the emerging situations.

We, as a leading research and training organization in the northern part of the country, are committed to play an active role in this new phase of urban administration and management. We have followed multi-dimensional measures to meet the challenges. Urban Panorama, our bilingual Journal, is one of the reputed journals in the field of urban affairs in the country. The present Issue of our Journal consists of papers on various aspects of urban management. It attempts to throw a light on various facets of urban development besides highlighting many of the concomitant problems.

I hope this Issue of Urban Panorama will attract the readers from both academics and practitioners in the field.
